RARE BOOKS BURNED

Fire Ruins the Library at Georgetown College.

SERIES OF MISHAPS OCCUR

Early Morning Blaze in Old North Building Causes $10,000 Damage. Horse Carriage and Horses Plunge Over Embankment—Students Aid Firemen—Overheated Pipes Blamed.

A fire which originated in the boiler room of the Old North Building, at Georgetown College, yesterday morning destroyed a valuable library of rare books. A loss of $10,000 was caused before firemen gained control of the blaze.

It was about 6 o'clock when the halls of the old building, which was erected in 1795, began to fill with smoke, awakening thirty students asleep in dormitories on the upper floors, and sending them scurrying to the campus.

Flames Spread Quickly. The flames originated around overheated steam pipes and ate through the floor about them into the library, where they spread with such remarkable rapidity that in a few minutes the ancient structure seemed doomed.

Alarms were sounded and engine companies were soon on the way to the scene. Fire Marshal Nicholson was driving in his buggy at full speed when he reached Wisconsin avenue and P streets northwest. The horse attached to the vehicle slipped on the asphalt and fell, upsetting the buggy and throwing the fire marshal and the driver to the street. They escaped injury and continued to the fire.

Superintendent of Machinery Robinson also had a narrow escape from injury. He was driving to the fire and was going through Executive avenue at high speed when the horse fell and slid for fifteen yards on the asphalt. The horse was hurt, but the occupants of the buggy were not injured.

The most sensational accident occurred after the apparatus reached the scene and firemen were fighting the flames. A horse carriage was driven to a hydrant near the brink of a steep embankment, and the driver, Ernest W. Lowe, leaped to the ground to get blankets with which to cover the horses, which were steaming after the long run.

He had no sooner turned his back when the horses started running, headed for the embankment. Believing he could save the horse and the horse carriage, Lowe risked his life and jumped for the heads of the frightened animals, catching them by the bridles and swinging on. The team went over the embankment, Lowe clinging for life to the bits and landing unhurt on the road 100 feet below. Persons who saw the accident described the escape of the driver as miraculous.

Second Alarm Sounded. A second alarm was sounded, but before the arrival of engines responding to the first call, the fire had gained control of the blaze. The fire was confined to the library, in which there were hundreds of valuable volumes, paintings, and antiques. The commercial loss is not felt by the faculty, as it is covered by insurance, but they appreciate the damage caused by the blaze because nearly everything destroyed was brought from great distances at much labor and expense and donated to the college by persons of note.

The conference room of the library, where the rarest editions were kept, was not damaged, except by smoke. The cases in which the books were kept were made of beautiful Brazilian wood brought from South America years ago by a former student.

The damage to the building is estimated at $15,000, and the loss of the contents is placed at $5,000. The loss is covered by a "blanket" insurance.

HERO OF MANY FIRES DROPS DEAD AFTER RUN

"Old Black Joe," a veteran of the fire department, met his death yesterday morning as heroically as he had performed his duties for years as a faithful and intelligent fire horse.

It was a few minutes after 5 o'clock, when the first alarm was sounded for the fire in the Old North Building at Georgetown University, and "Old Black Joe" left No. 1 engine house, in K street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets northwest, as he had done time and again for years.

There was a long, hard pull of more than a mile and a half ahead, and Driver John Marti tried to save his team as much as possible. He knew the run was uphill most of the way, and he realized it would test the worth of the horses he was guiding.

Block after block was passed at good speed, and the engine reached the scene of the blaze in record time. The horses slowed down as they guided the team toward a hydrant. "Old Black Joe" was panting heavily, and did not seem to be himself, but he plodded along stoically.

As the engine was stopped beside the hydrant and the horses knew their run was ended, the valiant steed snorted and fell to the ground.

Marti jumped from his seat on the engine and ran around in front of the fallen horse in time to see "Old Black Joe" roll his eyes toward heaven and die.

Physicians who examined the horse later said death was due to heart failure, caused by overexertion.

SISTER SEEKS DAMAGES.

Claims Brother Has Caused Her Detention in Insane Asylums. Florence H. Butler, now held in the insane ward of the Washington Asylum Hospital, yesterday entered suit against her brother, Kenny L. Butler, to recover $50,000 damages.

She alleges that in an attempt to secure control of her interest in their father's estate her brother has persistently charged that she is insane, and has brought about her retention in a number of asylums, hospitals, sanatoriums, and retreats. It is alleged that their father, Joseph C. Butler, left an estate in Cincinnati, Ohio, valued at $800,000, in which she and her brother are jointly interested with other brothers and sisters. The defendant is the administrator of the estate. The plaintiff alleges that because of the alleged persecution by her brother she has been deprived of her liberty and caused to suffer mentally and physically, and has been humiliated and disgraced.

JUDSON EXPRESSES REGRET.

Engineer Commissioner Extols West and Macfarland.

Engineer Commissioner Judson yesterday expressed his regret over the resignation of his colleagues, Commissioners West and Macfarland. Maj. Judson had just returned from a visit to French Lick Springs, Ind.

"I sincerely regret the loss of my two colleagues," said Maj. Judson. "I understand perfectly, however, that in justice to themselves and to their families, neither Mr. West nor Mr. Macfarland can afford, for financial reasons, longer to serve the District. It is my belief the compensation of the Commissioners should be raised, so good men, when obtained, can be induced to remain in office. I think the District will be fortunate, indeed, if it can obtain as their successors men as upright, as earnest, and as devoted to their work as have been Mr. Macfarland and Mr. West."

CURFEW LAW URGED.

Macfarland Seeks Co-operation in Enforcing Proposed Regulations.

To prevent boys from loitering around saloons and poolrooms at late hours of the evening, Commissioner Macfarland is using his influence to have a curfew law incorporated in the police regulations of the District.

With a view to determining what action shall be taken upon the matter, Mr. Macfarland has requested Judge De Lacy, of the Juvenile Court; Agent J. A. Cisco, of the Board of Children's Guardians; Child Labor Inspectors Estes and Sanders, and Police Chief Sylvester to express their views as to the necessity of a curfew law and the facilities for enforcing it.

Wickersham to Speak.

Attorney General Wickersham will address the annual meeting of the Washington Chapter, American Red Cross Society, on "The nation and the Red Cross."

Stereopticon slides will be used. Miss Isabel Strong will speak on "What the Christmas stamp has done," and Miss Mabel T. Boardman will explain "Other fields of Red Cross relief."

The meeting will be held in the First Congregational Church, at Tenth and G streets, at 8 o'clock, November 24. Tickets may be obtained free from the Red Cross headquarters, War Department.
